

12 October 2026

Scantech announces new website

Scantech has launched a new look website, the website has undergone a total redesign. The objective of the overhaul was to modernise Scantech's appearance, to further reinforce Scantech's position as a global leader in real-time bulk material analysis.

The new website has been restructured to make it more user friendly and more informative.

It offers a more comprehensive overview of Scantech's products and services, to assist customers in making a more informed decision about their real-time bulk material analysis needs.

The new website compliments our newly built head office facilities and aligns with our company visions.

Shareholder information can now be found at the bottom right of the home page under Shareholders with the subheadings remaining unchanged.

Your Faithfully,

Valerie Steer
Company Secretary